

Today various organizations, be it online shopping, government and private sector organizations, catering and tourism industry or other institutions that offer customer services are concerned about their customers and ask for feedback every single time we use their services. Consider the fact, that these companies may be receiving enormous amounts of user feedback every single day. And it would become quite tedious for the management to sit and analyze each of those.